

Open Disclosure Foundation Soccer Festival

“The rights of women and children are human rights. They are inalienable from, integral to indivisible from our national human rights framework. Gender based violence and all forms of sexual exploitation are incompatible with the dignity and worth of the human person, and must be eliminated”

*From address by Dr Zola Skewyiya,
Minister of Social Development
Official opening of Open Disclosure Centre*

Open Disclosure Foundation

Open Disclosure Foundation is a Non Profit Organisation (NPO no.020505) funded by Government in aid of survivors of Sexual Abuse specifically targeting the youth.

In 2002, Open Disclosure opened a Centre in Fox street in Johannesburg CBD which is open to all the youth that have been affected by this scourge of sexual violence and where it offers counselling & therapy free of charge.

The centre not only represents a place of healing but a place of learning as well where skills are imparted to the youth so to assist them in moving forward in their lives.

Open Disclosure has taken up the responsibility to raise the awareness of this plague of violence against woman & children and also to educate the youth about sexual abuse and how to protect themselves from it. They “heal souls and restore young people” by offering support in a caring environment.

Open Disclosure Foundation Soccer Festival (5-a-side)

Every year, the international community participates in an UN-recognised and underwritten, 16 days of Activism campaign for No to Violence Against Women and Children. The South African government has, since 1998, organised an annual campaign to generate increased awareness of the negative impact of violence against women and children.

The 16 Days of Activism commences on November 25th (International day for no violence against women) and it ends on December 10th (International Human Rights Day).
